An aerial, high-angle view of a coastal town. A winding road runs along the shoreline, with several cars visible. To the left, a steep, rocky hillside is dotted with trees and a few buildings, including one with a swimming pool. To the right, the town's buildings are clustered along the coast, with thick, dark smoke billowing upwards from several points, suggesting a fire or industrial activity. The sea is visible on the right side of the frame.
